Our Director of Personnel tells me that he has been in touch with [redacted] of your organization. As he advised [redacted] the nature of our work requires that an individual receive a minimum of one year of formal and on-the-job training before being considered for an overseas position. Also, professional personnel are usually selected for assignments abroad many months before they are scheduled to depart from the United States. Regretfully, we will not be able to utilize [redacted] services in an overseas position at this time.
